

Trade account terms

In force from 1 March 2026. Issued by Buying. Review due 1 March 2027.

These terms govern trade accounts. They sit alongside our terms and conditions of sale, and where the two conflict, these terms win. Where a trade account holder buys as a consumer, using a personal card and a personal address, the retail policies apply to that order instead.

Opening an account

Accounts are opened for businesses trading in the bicycle sector: shops, workshops, fleet operators, cycling clubs with a purchasing officer, and frame builders. We ask for two trade references and a bank reference, and we take four to six weeks to open an account. There is no fee.

An account is opened with a credit limit set by Buying. The limit is reviewed after six months and annually after that. Orders that would take the balance over the limit are held rather than declined, and Buying calls the account holder the same working day.

Payment terms

Thirty days from the date of invoice. Invoices are issued on dispatch, not on order. Statements are issued on the first working day of each month.

An account more than fourteen days overdue is placed on hold and no further orders are dispatched until the balance is cleared. We would rather make an awkward telephone call in week two than write off an invoice in month six, and we say so when the account is opened.

Minimum order

The minimum trade order is £250 excluding VAT and excluding delivery. Orders below the minimum are accepted at retail prices, and the system will say so before the order is confirmed rather than afterwards.

Delivery

Trade delivery is free on orders over £250 to a mainland UK address. Below that threshold, and to all other addresses, the retail delivery bands apply. Trade orders are picked in the same queue as retail orders, in payment order, with no priority in either direction.

Returns and restocking

Stock lines may be returned within thirty days, unused and in original packaging, with no restocking charge.

Non-stock items — anything ordered in specifically against a trade order — carry a restocking charge of 15 per cent of the trade price, deducted from the credit note. This is the charge our own supplier makes to us, passed on at cost and not marked up.

Special-order items and anything cut to length cannot be returned at all. The returns desk marks a trade return as stock or non-stock; the charge is applied by Finance against the account, never at the desk.

Warranty

Trade orders carry a twelve month warranty from the date of invoice, which replaces the retail terms in the warranty policy. The exclusions are the same: crash damage, fitting error, corrosion through neglect, modification, and consumables.

A trade account holder making a claim on behalf of their own customer deals with us, not with the end customer, and we will not correspond directly with an end customer on a trade warranty claim.

Pricing

Trade prices are published to the account and are not visible to retail customers. Trade pricing and the retail price promise do not combine: an account holder buying at trade cannot also claim a retail price match.

Prices are reviewed quarterly. Where a price rises we give thirty days' notice and honour the old price on any order already placed.

Ending an account

Either party may close an account on thirty days' written notice. We may close an account immediately where an invoice is more than sixty days overdue, where the account has been used to buy for resale outside the sector, or where a member of our staff has been abused.
